

Grammar. Participle Clauses. Sentence Conversions

*Convert the sentences using a participle clause or a gerund. Example: I felt tired, so I went to bed. → Feeling tired I went to bed.

1. He was really intelligent but this made no difference.
2. James, who was shot by the burglar, eventually died.
3. It's impossible to get him to listen to you.
4. If you mix it with fruit juice, it tastes even better.
5. As they brought no food, they drew attention to themselves.
6. She picked up the book and started to flick through it.
7. Since he had forgotten his ID, he wasn't allowed to enter.
8. The boy remembered the time and started to run.
9. I saw the spider, so I screamed.
10. If you look after them well, they'll last you a lifetime.
11. He got out of bed. He put on his dressing gown.
12. He hadn't studied so he couldn't do any of the exam.
13. They were dishonest. This was second nature to them.
14. The most difficult thing to do is say sorry.
15. These machines, which are made in Germany, are very reliable.
16. Michelle lost her balance. She fell over.
17. Gary had spent all his money, so he had to go home early.

Grammar. Participle Clauses. Sentence Conversions

*Convert the sentences using a participle clause or a gerund. Example: I felt tired, so I went to bed. → Feeling tired I went to bed.

1. He was really intelligent but this made no difference.
2. James, who was shot by the burglar, eventually died.
3. It's impossible to get him to listen to you.
4. If you mix it with fruit juice, it tastes even better.
5. As they brought no food, they drew attention to themselves.
6. She picked up the book and started to flick through it.
7. Since he had forgotten his ID, he wasn't allowed to enter.
8. The boy remembered the time and started to run.
9. I saw the spider, so I screamed.
10. If you look after them well, they'll last you a lifetime.
11. He got out of bed. He put on his dressing gown.
12. He hadn't studied so he couldn't do any of the exam.
13. They were dishonest. This was second nature to them.
14. The most difficult thing to do is say sorry.
15. These machines, which are made in Germany, are very reliable.
16. Michelle lost her balance. She fell over.
17. Gary had spent all his money, so he had to go home early.